

Agenda publication made simple

Easy publication of agendas and minutes with your own logo and colors - without installing software

About the solution

With FirstAgenda Publication, you have the opportunity to share public agendas and minutes with your citizens while creating an overview of agendas, minutes, attachments, committees, and meetings.

You have full control over your data, including managing the display of titles and decisions on closed items at the committee level.

Easy implementation

Publication is set up to pull data directly from FirstAgenda Prepare. This includes historical data, and you can decide how far back to publish from.

No software needs to be installed in your own IT environment, so you can start using Publication right away.

Users can subscribe

Users can subscribe to new agendas and minutes, providing them with easy and quick access to the published material.

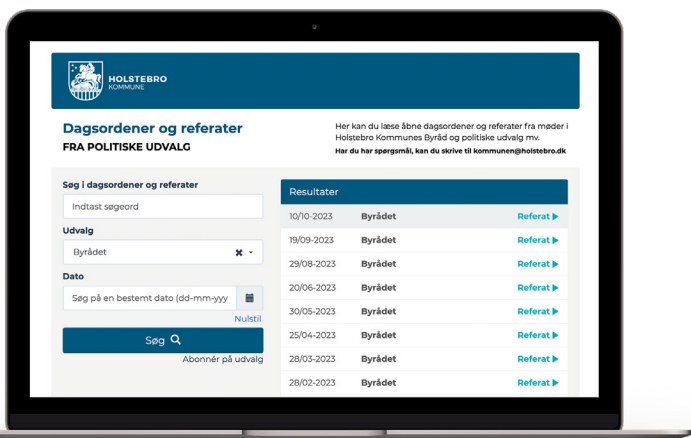

Users also have the option to notify each other about new publications and easily copy and share links to agendas and materials through Publication.

Your own design

FirstAgenda Publication is a standard solution where you can style it with your own logo, colors, and text fields.

This way, you get a user-friendly and recognizable look in the solution, making it easy for both employees and citizens to navigate.
